Friday, November 6, 2009

8:00 – 10:00 a.m.

Akron-Summit County Public Library

Main Branch Auditorium

60 South High Street, Akron, Ohio 44326

As legislators continue to debate various topics in the nation's healthcare reform efforts, philanthropic entities are evaluating their role in the discussion, tackling complex questions and issues. Should foundations adjust their funding priorities to address emerging healthcare needs? Will foundations begin to adopt a position of working more closely with government to influence public policy? What lessons have funders learned from foundation initiatives aimed at improving components of the healthcare system? How can charitable organizations leverage their assets to support healthcare reform and innovation on a broader scale?
